5th Annual Wicker Beefmaster Sale Set for March 25

Beeville, Texas — The 5th Annual Wicker Beefmaster Sale will be held Friday, March 25, 1983. Sale time is 1:00 p.m. at the Wicker Ranch located 10 miles southeast of Beeville on Refugio Hwy. 202. Lunch will be at 12:00 noon. Selling will be herd bulls, pairs, bred and open heifers and range bulls. For information contact Wicker Beefmasters, Don Chamrod, Ranch Manager 512/358-6844, Ed Wicker 512/358-1813 or 358-9207, P.O. Box 880, Beeville, Texas 78102.

spends billions to unload the surpluses in world markets. Our loan rates, to a lesser degree, accomplish the same thing: they cause our commodities to exceed world market-clearing prices.

While we are currently considering subsidizing exports primarily to blunt the EC's predatory practices, we might have to do it as a matter of course if we continue to overproduce for the government and not the market," he declared.

This plan, Delano explained, is consistent with a Farm Bureau proposal, called "Freeze and Fix," for getting federal spending under control. "Our farm program initiatives are simply an outgrowth of the desire of the nation's farmers and ranchers to curb federal spending and end the government's management of agriculture."

In line with that, Delano said his organization is calling for the elimination of the farmer-owned reserve by barring any further entry into it. The reserve, he said, encourages farmers to produce for storage, without consideration of whether grain can be sold, creating a "cloud" over the market.

There are currently more than four billion bushels in the reserve that, because of government fiat, can only reach the market when prices hit an arbitrary, government-set level. This is truly folly."

Another proposal in the Farm Bureau legislative package is a provision barring federal price supports, loans and disaster payments for crops produced on fragile grasslands. "Ever-increasing government incentives to produce have resulted in land unsuited to long-term agricultural production being cultivated, without regard for this precious resource," Delano charged.

Summarizing the Farm Bureau prescription for agricultural prosperity, Delano said, "In the long run, this is the best solution for farmers and consumers, something our three million member families will emphatically tell Congress. Our program provides for a gradual shift towards an agriculture that is market-oriented and not based on politically-expedient tinkering."

"We know change cannot happen overnight, but it will never happen if we do not start now," Delano concluded.

Philadelphia, served as the panel moderator. During his presentation on "Your Heart — Your Health," Kritchevsky said that heart disease is a lifestyle disease and cannot be attributed to any single factor, especially to a single food or group of foods.

"It involves at least 20-40 identifiable risk factors, among them smoking, high blood pressure and elevated cholesterol levels," Kritchevsky said.

"Science concludes that single factors cannot be isolated as being beneficial or harmful to the heart, because all essential elements in the diet work together to promote health."

Dr. William Strong, a pediatric cardiologist with the Medical College of Georgia, said the seven factors he watches most closely as contributors to heart disease are: (1) smoking; (2) anxiety; (3) inactivity; (4) obesity; (5) high cholesterol; (6) glucose intolerance; (7) diabetes; and (8) hypertension.

As for sports, Strong said, the greatest failure in America is the "instant success" syndrome. "We want to know what food to eat that will make us a success — now."

"There is no food that will make you run faster or jump higher to become a better athlete," Strong said.

Dr. Josephine Martin, director of the local systems support of the American school lunch. She described the impact that the school lunch program has on agriculture.

"School districts spend about 50 cents per child per day locally for food. That means about $2 billion spent annually in local markets to buy food for lunches. USDA buys about 5.7 million pounds of beef per day," Martin said.

On other topics, Dr. Gaurth Hansen of Utah State University examined what Americans are eating today. His conclusions: "Too much."

One of the biggest problems facing Americans, Hansen said, is eating too much. "Our caloric consumption is high. Obesity is an American risk factor and the only way to control obesity is to lower the intake of calories," he said.

Dietary advice cannot be broadly given to individuals to prevent cancer.

Says Dr. Gio Batta Gori, vice president of the Franklin Institute Research Center.

"Individuals with specific problems ought to seek specific advice," he says. "But the majority of us ought to eat a variety of food and avoid excess calories. In truth that is all we can say."

Fast foods were examined by Dr. Judith Stern, an author and professor with the University of California at Davis.

"If there is a problem with fast food," Stern says, "it is the fact that they lack adequate fiber. Supplement fiber in your diet and there's no reason to give up your favorite hamburger or other fast food meal."

Sponsors are planning another conference next year, although specific plans have not been drawn.

alien workers. The present program is so complex and difficult that it is hardly used by livestock producers. Proposed changes in the program do not address the real needs of agriculture. Agricultural needs for a temporary worker program are unique in that seasonal requirements and other factors are involved. The legislation should include certain flexible and more workable provisions relating to agriculture, and authority for administering an H-2 program for agriculture should be assigned to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Opportunity Knocks

are you listening?

Opportunities always exist, even in economically tough times like we're facing today. The difference now is that survival may depend on finding those opportunities and taking advantage of them.

One opportunity that cattlemen should capitalize on is crossbreeding. By crossbreeding, a cattleman can reap the benefits from both selection and hybrid vigor.

The cattleman can select for traits that will match his available resources, traits that will make his operation more cost efficient and traits that the packer and consumer are looking for. The genetic improvement just from crossing two breeds is like an added bonus.

When considering breeds for your crossbreeding program, there is one you shouldn't overlook. A breed that offers these extras:

- Calving Ease
- Heavy Weaning Weights
- Carcasses that yield an abundance of lean, red meat with very little fat
- Easy keeping cows that won't eat you out of house and home

When times get tough, don't let opportunities pass you by.

Discover the Limousin Extra. Write today for research results on Limousin cattle and a list of Limousin breeders in your area. North American Limousin Foundation, 100 Livestock Exchange Building, Denver, Colorado 80216.

Gelbvieh Registrations
Jump 47 Percent

The American Gelbvieh Association wrapped up 1982 having registered 11,741 "P" cattle or a 47 percent increase above the previous year and a percent greater than 1980.

Likewise, transfers followed and increased 30 percent over the 1981 recorded the previous year. Member ships increased 16 percent.
This growth required a larger breed association - more space and additional employees. In June, the AGA moved to better provide the services requested by members and inquirers.

Polled Hereford Perspective '83 Coming in June

You won't want to miss "Perspective '83" - four big events planned to give Polled Hereford breeders a clear, updated overview of their place in the industry. Putting the APHA Sire Summary, marketing programs and the future of Polled Herefords in perspective, these programs will feature specially tailored programs geared to the Polled Hereford breed.
"Perspective '83" will set the stage June 8 in Clay Center, Neb., where breeders will get a first-hand look at the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center's work proving the efficiency of Polled Hereford-cross cows. From there, Perspective moves to Dunwalke Farm, Far Hills, N.J., on June 11; to Middle Tennessee State University, Murfreesboro, Tenn., on June 17; and finally to the Oregon State Fairgrounds in Salem, Ore., on June 28.
The "Marketing in Perspective" segment will include planned salesmanship, the philosophies of effective marketing, planning advertising programs, ad design and placement and livestock photography. "Polled Hereford Future in Perspective" will explore where the breed fits in the beef industry, the important role Polled Herefords play in crossbreeding systems and plotting a course for the breed. "Sire Summary in Perspective" will stress the impact this tool has had and will have on the breed. This discussion will cover the use and interpretation of the Sire Summary, as well as how to employ this valuable tool in building pedigrees and planning breeding programs.
This event should be a "must attend" on the calendar of every Polled Hereford breeder and interested cattleman. The American Polled Hereford Association is sponsoring the event.

Animal Nutrition and Disease Experts To Highlight Pfizer Research Conference

New York - Recent advances in animal and poultry nutrition and disease research will be discussed at the 31st Annual Pfizer Research Conference scheduled for Monday, May 2, in Kansas City, Mo. The conference, scheduled for 1:35 p.m. at the Radisson Hotel, will open the 75th Annual American Feed Manufacturers Association (AFMA) Convention.

"This conference is held to promote the free flow of ideas between industry and some of the top university experts in animal and poultry nutrition and disease research," says Dr. Rendle L. Cornwell, conference chairman and vice president, science and technology, Pfizer Agricultural Division. "We are pleased to sponsor this research forum for the 31st time, and we are especially happy to help the AFMA celebrate its 75th anniversary."

Conference Chairman

The following speakers and their topics have been announced by Dr. Cornwell: Dr. Bobby L. Damron, University of Florida, "Methionine Levels and Sources of Poultry"; Dr. Gary L. Allee, Kansas State University, "Nutrition of the Wombed Pig"; and Dr. Fred N. Owens, Oklahoma State, "Manipulation of Rumen

Fermentation."

R. M. Hendrickson, president, Pfizer Agricultural Division, will make a special presentation saluting the AFMA and its relationship with the feed industry during its 75 years of existence. As in previous years, a nationally-known featured speaker will conclude the conference.

For the past 30 years, the Pfizer Research Conference has been attended by several hundred nutritionists, feed manufacturing executives, government personnel, university scientists and others associated with the feed industry. The proceedings of each conference are a highly regarded source of research information for industry and educational associations. The proceedings are made available at the conference and subsequently from Pfizer in New York.

The Pfizer Agricultural Division is one of the nation's leading suppliers of animal health products, including a broad range of feed supplements. Pfizer is a worldwide producer of pharmaceuticals and hospital products, organic fine chemicals, agricultural, consumer and materials science products. Sales of the corporation exceeded $3.4 billion in 1982.

Stress Relief Power-Up With Ralco Power-Pak-Mix

Ralco-Mix Products, Inc. has recently been marketing a livestock stress formula called Power-Pak-Mix. Ralco's nutritionists looked at the increasing demands placed on livestock for higher and faster production rates, along with the stress complications of inadequate nutrition, shrinkage, slow recovery, shipping, receiving and deathloss and formulated Power-Pak-Mix.

Power-Pak-Mix contains high levels of vitamins, electrolytes, amino acids, probiotics and Ralco's Suppl-Mix. The probiotics and Suppl-Mix help promote appetite, along with improving total digestion and stimulating an active rumen population.

Power-Pak-Mix is available in medicated and non-medicated form. The non-medicated Power-Pak-Mix does not require any restrictions relating to feeding and eliminating the concern of possible residues being left in the tissues of animals. Power-Pak-Mix contains Deccox.

Numerous feedlots as well as other customers from areas of the United States have commented on the favorable results that they have seen by using Power-Pak-Mix. In a recent trial research test conducted by a large western feedlot, having from 35,000 to 40,000 head on feed, the following results were recorded:

- 38% less sickness
- 27% less deathloss
- 33% lower treatment costs

Charles Phillips, Nortex Nutritional Services, Grapevine, Texas says, "I've seen remarkable savings throughout the Texas area with the use of Power-Pak-Mix. If you can treat your cattle from the point of origin, you can save. Even if you save 2% on shrinkage, you are maximizing your savings." Phillips also states, "There has been a noticeable effect on controlling deathloss, ranging anywhere from 1/4 to 2%, which means saving from 2-5 head or more per load, in some instances. We've seen excellent results in feedlots throughout Texas, as well as other very positive results from across the country."

Power-Pak-Mix can be used for all livestock at any age, including calves suffering from stress-induced diarrhea and dehydration. In severe cases, Power-Pak-Mix can be administered as a drench. Mixed with whatever you feed, Ralco's Power-Pak-Mix is a proven way to help control stress.

You don't have to see profits slip away during stress periods. For more information contact Ralco-Mix Products, Inc., 1-800-538-6306, or Nortex Nutritional Services, P.O. Box 1149, Grapevine, Texas 76051, 817/481-4929.

Cattlemen Told to Concentrate on Buying

Kearney, Neb. - Survival in the cattle industry in the 1980s will require "above-average skills" in production as well as in buying, selling and borrowing, an ag economist told the Cargill Cattlemen's Seminar here last week.

David C. Petritz of Purdue University said cattle producers are generally not comfortable with the buying, marketing and financial aspects of the business. Therefore, they should "hire expertise" in those areas to complement their production skills. Petritz said, "This is the age of Specialization in Management." Why should agriculture remain unique?

In general, the beef cattle industry will benefit from declining cattle numbers and an improving economy during the next two or three years, the economist said. Yet the profitability of cattle feeders will depend on their becoming "full-time businessmen in a highly competitive industry" in order to survive the "unexpected shocks from weather, government policies and the shifting patterns of demand," he said.

Cattle prices will not receive much help from demand the first half of this year. Petritz said, because economic recovery will be slow. On the supply side, beef production will exceed 1982 by 6-9% in the first quarter and by 4-6% in the second quarter; even though some marketings were delayed to the second quarter due to bad weather, second quarter production will drop significantly from the first three months, he said. Second-half output should be equal to or less than 1982 levels.

Cattle weights are expected to exceed 1982 weights during the January-June period, although the amount will be moderated by snow and mud problems, a larger percentage of heifers in the lots and rising corn prices, he said.

Petritz forecast that pork production will be down 5% in the first half but will exceed 1982 levels in the second half of this year. Hog output will rise 1-3% while turkey output will climb 3-5% in 1983. Beef imports, meanwhile, should drop sharply if the drought ends and herd rebuilding begins in Australia.

The net result is cattle prices should average near $50 in January-March, then increase seasonally to a mid-$60s average for April-June. Prices in the low to mid $60s are expected for the second half. Last year, Choice steers averaged near $85, compared with $64 in 1981.

Farmers Throwing in the Plow

A survey of agricultural bankers in the Eleventh District reveals that an average of 3.6 percent of the farmers in the surveyed banks' trade areas left farming during the last six months of 1982. This is roughly twice as many departures as bankers thought would normally have occurred. According to the survey results, 28.7 percent of the farmers who went out of business left for reasons unrelated to the current financial difficulties in agriculture. Also, 33.0 percent of those who stopped farming departed voluntarily as a result of financial stress (voluntary liquidations). Bankruptcies and creditor foreclosures (forced liquidations) accounted for 38.6 percent of the farmers who turned in the plows. Partial liquidations were also substantially greater than normal. Bankers expect farm liquidations/bankruptcies to increase during the next three months as farmers' loans reach maturity. Highly leveraged farmers who cannot pay off their loans may have difficulty securing the necessary operating funds for the 1983 growing seasons and thus may be forced to liquidate.

Of the farmers who went out of business, bankers report that the majority had medium size farms. Approximately 62.1 percent were operating farms that had gross annual sales of between $10 thousand and $200 thousand. Small farms (those with gross annual sales of $40 thousand or less) accounted for 19.9 percent of the liquidations/bankruptcies, while farmers with gross annual sales of over $200 thousand made up 18.3 percent of the departures.

One man was buying some meat in the butcher shop when another entered in a great hurry and rudely interrupted: "Give me some dog meat, quick!"

Then turning to the other customer: "I hope you don't mind my cutting in?"

"Not at all," said the other, smiling. "Not if your mother is that hungry."

Bacterial Supplements Fight Shipping Stress, Promote Thrifty, Healthy Calves

Controlling shipping stress in feeder calves has been a perennial problem for beef producers. That stress, manifested in the form of shipping fever, scour, and other diseases, can cause poor performance, lowered feed utilization and in severe cases, total loss due to death of the animal.

To fight these stress problems, calves are routinely treated with antibiotics when they arrive. This preventive treatment may reduce the losses caused by shipping stress, but for the calves to perform to their full potential, it's vital that they consume feed at optimum levels as quickly as possible. Animals that are feeding normally will do better and have less illness than those which are off feed for a period after shipment.

Research into the digestive process has shown that the primary cause of calves going off feed when stressed is a microbial imbalance in the digestive system. This imbalance occurs when the naturally occurring microorganisms in the gut responsible for normal digestion die off and are outnumbered by pathogenic bacteria which can impair normal gut function. When that happens, the calves' digestion slows, gains decline, the animal becomes unthrifty and the diseases associated with shipping stress are likely to follow.

Restoring the natural balance between "good" and "bad" bacteria in the gut as rapidly as possible can substantially reduce the incidence of stress-related diseases and get the animal performing at a higher rate of gain.

Research has shown that certain microorganisms, in particular Lactobacillus acidophilus, can help restore that balance. Field trials have shown that calves which receive supplemental doses of Lactobacillus acidophilus after shipping and as part of their feed ration have increased weight gains, better feed conversion and fewer health problems than animals not receiving the bacteria.

Dr. David P. Hutcheson of Texas A&M recently conducted a trial to measure the effectiveness of administering Lactobacillus acidophilus to calves that were shipped over one thousand miles. The calves averaged 428 pounds and were treated on arrival with a dewormer, insecticide, clostridial vaccine and Vitamin A. Half of the animals received either one or two Biomax[®] BG boluses, a Lactobacillus acidophilus inoculant produced by Chr. Hansen's Laboratory, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, upon arrival and one half gram of Biomax[®] 10, also manufactured by Hansen's, per head per day for the 28 days of the trial.

Biomax[®] BG is a bolus capsule which contains twenty billion live Lactobacillus acidophilus organisms. This provides a concentrated infusion of beneficial bacteria to help reestablish the microbial balance in the gut.

Biomax 10 is a freeze-dried powder which contains ten billion microorganisms per gram. The one half gram daily dosage provided a continuous supply of five billion bacteria throughout the 28 day trial.

Dr. Hutcheson recorded data measuring average daily gains, feed consumption, mortality and morbidity. His results showed a definite advantage in daily gains, increased feed consumption, lowered mortality, and reduced morbidity for the Lactobacillus acidophilus treated calves.

Dr. Richard Zinn of the University of California, Davis, conducted another trial utilizing lightweight (202 pound average) stressed calves. The calves received a Biomax BG bolus on arrival and one half gram of Biomax 10 per head/per day incorporated in the feed for 28 days.

Dr. Zinn's findings demonstrated that the calves which received the Lactobacillus acidophilus inoculation showed a definite positive response in performance. 31% fewer test animals required sick pen treatment and test animals had 51.4% fewer sick days than the control group.

Both trials confirm the beneficial effects of providing Lactobacillus acidophilus inoculants to calves on arrival. The restoration of a natural digestive balance to the gut enabled the calves to consume more feed, achieve a faster rate of gain and experience less morbidity and mortality than the groups receiving no Lactobacillus supplement.

As an answer to the problem of shipping stress, Lactobacillus inoculation has the potential to become one of the most powerful weapons in the beef producers' arsenal. It allows him to put nature to work to improve his cattle's performance and decrease his cost of production.

New Plastic Post for Easy Electric Fencing

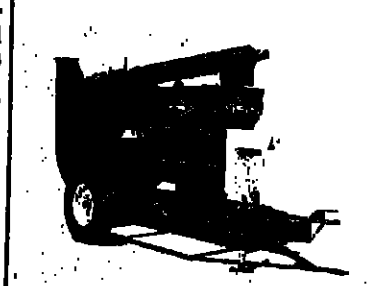

Snell Systems has introduced a polymer plastic fence post for temporary and portable electric fencing. The Snell Tread-In Poly Post features eight molded-on wire clips for electric fences up to three feet high. A reinforced foot pad and steel ground spike allows fast installation.

The Snell Tread-In Post can be used with standard electric fence wire or Snell's Poly Wire — six strands of stainless steel interwoven with strong, lightweight polyethylene plastic. Recommended spacing is 30 feet apart on level ground, use one or more strands to strip grass livestock, keep out predators, protect crops and gardens from pests.

Roller Mills with Blowers Efficient

Columbus, Nebraska — Henke Machine, Inc. roller mills with blowers can process grains efficiently at harvest time and fill upright silos. Rolling grain saves storage space and helps improve feed rations.

The addition of the blower to a roller mill brings no loss of capacity. Shelled corn, barley, milo and wheat can be harvested quickly.

Roller mills pack tighter in storage to increase storage capacity about 25 percent.

"Tests have shown rolled grains outperform whole grain in stretching livestock feed conversion," Wayne Davy, president of Henke, said.

Capacity of roller mills with blowers range from 150 to 1800 bushels per hour in both portable and stationary models. Corrugation on nine inch diameter rolls can be specified. Standard corrugation on both the seven and nine inch diameter rolls efficiently cracks and moves grains.

Fineness of grind can be changed as the mill operates. Mills without blowers are available with hydraulically-driven input augers and either a seven or twelve inch elevator.

Henke has manufactured feed and grain processing and handling equipment for 40 years. More information on Henke portable roller mills and the on-tire product line is available from Henke Machine, Inc., P.O. Box 1006, Columbus, Nebraska 68601, telephone 402/564-0565.

Farmers Benefit From Payment-In-Kind

Eleventh District farmers, like most other American farmers, continue to struggle with a depressed agricultural economy. A combination of large amounts of commodities in storage (which has reduced demand) has resulted in low prices and low farm incomes. In fiscal year 1982, Federal Government payments to farmers under various farm programs totaled more than $11 billion. To further assist farmers during these hard times, the Federal Government has added a new wrinkle, called payment-in-kind (PIK), to its ongoing farm program. PIK has a potentially large impact on District crop farmers. The District's five most important crops (in value terms) — cotton, grain sorghum, corn, wheat and rice — are the only crops that are covered by this program.

PIK allows eligible farmers to idle additional acreage in return for commodities in farmer-controlled or government-owned storage. In return for idling additional acreage under this new program, wheat farmers will receive 95 percent of the amount they would normally have grown. Cotton, rice, and grain sorghum farmers will receive 80 percent (grain sorghum and corn are considered together by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA)). Although PIK's effect on markets will depend on farmers' response (how many participate and the amount of acreage idled by participants), estimates can be constructed. Consider a plausible scenario for cotton as an example. The USDA estimates that in the absence of PIK, 1982/83 production will be about 12.5 million bales with "medium" yields and that usage (domestic consumption and exports) will be approximately 12.0 million bales. Under PIK, production would be about 2.5 million bales less, but about 80 percent of that foregone production will come onto the market in the form of sales of in-kind compensation from stocks. Thus, under these assumptions, PIK would prevent a .5-million-bale increase in stocks and reduce pressures for further declines in cotton prices.

The actual size and direction of the program's effect will depend on crop yields. In a large range of harvest outcomes, PIK will result in stronger upward pressure (or weaker downward pressure) on crop prices. The exceptions are very good harvests and very poor ones. With very good harvests, crop prices will face downward pressure as total supplies (new commodity production plus in-kind commodity compensation) reaching the market increase despite the PIK acreage reduction. Existing price support programs may mitigate this pressure, and if so, PIK will have little additional effect. With very poor harvests that would otherwise lead to large price increases, PIK moderates these increases by boosting market supplies. (In-kind compensation would exceed the PIK-induced foregone production for a net gain in supply.) On the other hand, PIK will reduce (or lower the increase in) stocks of the eligible commodities regardless of the yield of the harvest.

On balance, however, the USDA estimates that with medium harvests, total consumption for the six eligible crops will exceed production with PIK. Thus, PIK is expected to reduce production during the year and stocks at the end of the year while increasing farmers' incomes. Crop prices may rise, also. The USDA expects that corn/grain sorghum production in 1983 will fall by 848 million bushels, cotton production will decline by 2.5 million bales, wheat production will be reduced by 265 million bushels, while rice production will be down 21 million hundredweight. A rough estimate of the fall in District agricultural crop production is 8 to 13 percent in quantity, or about $360 million.

Most farmers who participate in PIK will receive a substantial income supplement, because the net return on PIK-idled acres will be higher than if crops had been grown and marketed. Thus, many Eleventh District crop farmers will increase their incomes by participating in the program. But not all members of the District agricultural community will benefit from PIK. If feed grain prices rise, then some District livestock operations will be hurt, as will export customers. Also, suppliers of inputs (seed, chemicals, and farm machinery) to District agriculture will be pinched as farmers participating in PIK reduce their purchases.

Estimating the likely size of PIK-induced changes in District farmers' incomes encounters considerable uncertainty. A rough guess about the probable magnitude of PIK income effects can be made if it is assumed that (1) 1983 crop prices will not change from their 1982 levels, (2) PIK cotton and rice, because of quality differences, will sell for 10 percent less than new cotton and rice, and (3) the USDA projections

High Energy Hog Rations Provide Best Value

Right now, the hog industry is one of the few bright spots in agriculture. According to one swine expert, a reason for this success is containing improvements in feed efficiency. "Efficient use of feed is the key to the hog business; feed is the single largest operating expense in a hog operation. Producers should use high energy rations because they provide the best value for the feed dollar, measured not just on cost, but also by the performance of the feed," said Dr. Bud Harmon, director of swine research for Ralston Purina Company.

According to the feed expert, high energy feeds should be measured by cost-effectiveness as well as performance. "In the past few years, growing acceptance of high energy rations has occurred because producers realized they provide the most efficient gain per feed dollar."

He points to a recent new development in swine feeds that will help producers manage their feed dollars better while maintaining the high performance provided by high energy rations. "Purina recently completed the development of a high energy, amino acid balanced, 38 percent protein concentrate to complement the High Octane 27 percent concentrate previously used for finishing and other rations," noted the researcher.

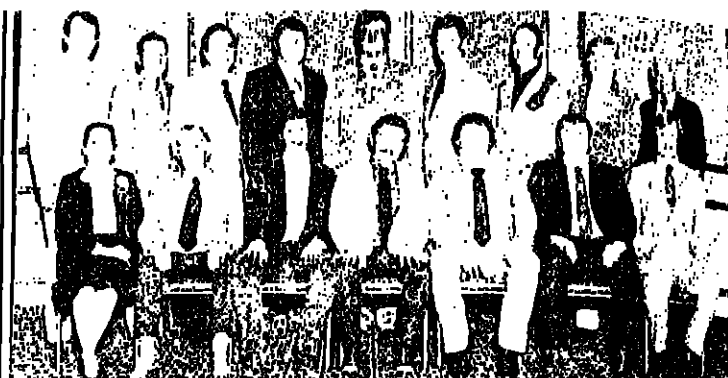

"This is the first high energy, low inclusion concentrate to be offered nationwide, and it allows producers to take advantage of local grain prices when putting gain on a hog," he continued. "This new product mixes a 40 percent concentrate and a producer uses 43 percent less of High Octane 38 than High Octane 27 to produce the same ton of feed."

Local grain prices will determine what concentrate the producer uses, and the new product gives him flexibility in managing his feeding program to get the best value from his rations," explained Dr. Harmon.

The efficiency of high energy feeds stems from excellent performance, measured by on farm tests conducted by Purina. "Tests were conducted on 575 farms, and they showed high energy rations were more efficient," he said. All these tests were with the High Octane line of rations, which are also amino acid balanced to ensure proper nutrient levels. This can really boost rate of gain, and cut the amount of feed needed to bring hogs to market," he continued.

In nationwide tests of High Octane growing/finishing rations, 47,898 pigs were started at an average weight of 54 lbs. After an average of 104 days on feed, 46,988 hogs went to market averaging 218 lbs. Final results showed a 1.58 average daily gain on 3.15 lbs. of feed per pound of gain.

Harmon concluded by stating that "hog producers can measure the performance of high energy feeds in their operations by setting up a feed test to measure the performance of a high

American Bralers Breeders Assn. Directors' Meeting

R-NOL-D Farms, Brenham, Texas was the scene of the American Bralers Association winter directors' meeting on February 12. Bralers will be the cross of 5/8 Salers, 3/8 Brahman which is in the half blood stage at this time. The spectacular increase in interest in the Salers breed in the past year has created great interest in the Braler cross. The initial half bloods toward the cross are now yearlings and have received much favorable comment. The group considered a number of changes and additions to the by-laws which had been approved at the organizational meeting last May 5.

The meeting was called by R. F. Arnold, Chairman and President. Other directors present were: L. F. McCollum, Carl Pfeiffer, Dr. Richard Leigh, and Fred Buxton. The next meeting will be for the full membership and will be held on April 16 at a place to be determined.

Commodity Comments

Week Ending March 11, 1983
The recent market action in metals, grain, financial instruments, and livestock, cause me to wonder what is the trend in prices. Are we in bull markets, a beginning bear market, or just what? Until time passes and I can look back with hindsight, I will not know for sure where our markets are heading. I do know however, the markets are very nervous and are poised to move either sharply higher or lower, depending on new economic news.

The grain markets remain rather lackluster in recent days. The traders are following the precious metal markets for direction and so far, that type of leadership has been lacking. The European Economic Community wants to place some type of sanctions against our imports into Europe. Let's hope that we do not enter into a trade-war situation with the rest of the world. This type of action is extremely bearish and could put a real pall over any recovery for U.S. agricultural prices. This type of action was last seen in 1929 and 1930, and was obviously disastrous for the U.S. economy.

The Mercantile Exchange continues to see strong cattle prices and weak pork prices. Nearly everyone is "heuristic" on hogs and bellies, and looking for much lower prices. The March Pig Crop Report will be one of the most crucial we have seen in years. I still feel that price breaks in all meats should be used as a buying opportunity. The July hogs and bellies options could be real sleepers for a "bull move" by summer. A seasonal low for hogs should occur within the next 12 weeks.

The metal markets continue to chop around after last week's price collapse. The metals need some news to get them going on the upside. My guess is that gold and silver have more liquidating to do until a good rally can occur. The metals are almost untradeable at this time, and I suggest a stand-aside position. Should you get a case of bull fever, try buying palladium first, then platinum. Neither should hurt you too badly if your timing is off. (And they have the best long-term fundamentals going for them.)

Which Way From Here?
Keep your eye on the stock market in the days ahead. It's my guess that stock prices and any action by the Federal Reserve System will be the main fundamental force at work. A sharp break in the stock market will surely make the surrounding markets nervous. The overall market psychology seems to be changing to slightly bearish. Keep in mind that most markets have worked higher in price since the summer and fall of 1982. Therefore, a sharp price break (like the recent collapse in metals), would not be out of the ordinary. Also, remember that often times the best position is no position.

Angus Quality Runs Deep at Houston Livestock Show

Quality ran deep at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo in Houston, Texas, as 83 Angus were named around the showing. Many Angus spectators watched as judge Jim Gilnoly, Washington, Indiana, gave his final nod to each champion.

60" tall. Brant Brothers at Muldrow, Oklahoma selected a very large framed Hereford yearling for $8,200. Volume buyer was the Stuart Ranch, a large commercial Hereford operation headquartered at Caddo, Okla.

The top selling heifer, a yearling, sold for $6,650 to Dennis Fitzpatrick, a rancher from Sterling, Kansas. The second top selling female, also a yearling, sold for $4,000 to Bedford Ranches at Canton, Oklahoma. Seasoned observers at the sale were surprised that the averages and prices were so strong in view of the past year's economic conditions in the livestock industry. Many attributed the near record prices to the optimistic forecasts now surfacing for the next several years in the cattle industry.

Stuph & Thangs

It's more than a slap on the wrist or a short stay at a minimum security prison which has all the comforts and recreations of a country club, while another pore soul gets a few bucks in merchandise or money and gets a long term in the joint.

We rail about how little kids are learning in school in part because their teachers either don't know how to teach or don't care, or because there are rowdies and rough necks tearing up the schools or attackin' teachers who try to alter break 'em into some kind of civilized behavior. It would seem that if kids refuse to learn or attend classes and will not leave those who are serious alone, they should be kicked out. The policy of lettin' non-students invade schools and college campuses and disrupt things seems inexcusable and why the faculties think they have to put up with outsiders on campus hoggies the mind. Call the cops.

One of the recent quotes that got a grin was that of Gov. Mark White of Texas who campaigned on a No New Taxes platform, however, now he suggested that his position did not extend to "sin taxes." Now a definition of sin taxes might be an interest study. Natchery the more prominent sin taxes have to do with liquor, tobacco, etc., but pick up any newspaper or tune in any radio or T&V news cast and you find that sins of various magnitudes are committed on streets, stores, automobiles, clubs, movies and as a matter of fact the ability of some people to sin seems to know no bounds or limits as to locale or the vehicle used for sinning.

If we already have too many laws to permit enforcement, then perhaps it would be better to repeal 'em than to start tryin' to add more laws to the pile. What we really need is a few politicians to appear who are not interested in perpetuity in office, but want just one turn in office long enough to get criminals of all stripes made to regret their sins. This kind of sin tax would really pay off handsomely, and when public officials violate the laws they deserve a heavier handed justice than the run of the mill thief or highjacker.

Ever think, The Editor.

P.S. Uncle Dunk notes Comptroller Bob Bullock of Texas reports the Sales Tax is running some 4.5% behind and this is creating all kinds of problems for the State & Local Governments who like to blow this money on various projects. Git set for a lot of new ideas on taxes, at all levels. Dunk figures some folks may think we have made a lot of progress since the days when one of them South or Central American countries got too raunchy and we would send a boat load of Marines down there to jerk the slack outta 'em, but you got to admit it was a lot quicker and neater than the way we handle these outbreaks now. — Thassell, Brothers!

Wool & Mohair

Denver, Mar. 10 (USDA) — Domestic wool market slow in fairly thin trading. Some hesitation noted on the part of mills as they attempt to evaluate the effects of currency devaluations in Australia and New Zealand of 10% and 8% respectively.

Shearing underway in most areas of the country with several clips reported to be consigned to warehouses. A few sales of small clips 60s to 80s sold in Utah/Idaho from 60-65 cents grease FOB. In Colorado several clips 60s to 65-80 cents and few 60s to 65-66 cents. In Wyoming a clip of 82,000 pounds 60s to 84s at 55 cents grease FOB.

Early week auctions suspended in Australia and New Zealand due to aforementioned devaluations. On aforementioned devaluations. On Thursday prices in Australia were 10-20 cents higher clean per kilo as compared to last week, at least in part reflecting the 7.5% increase in the AWC floor price. AWC offerings into the United States temporarily withdrawn until full assessment of market reaction to the devaluation. Japan purchased near 20% while the AWC took near 17%. In New Zealand prices were near 10% higher on Thursday offsetting most of the devaluation effect.

Trading limited on Texas mohair with small lots average adult $2.20-2.25, fine adult $2.31 and 22,000 pounds fine 26s 4' spring kid at $6.519 grease FOB warehouse.

The most often used words in English are "the," "and," and "to."

Regina Inman, a petite 19-year-old beauty from Maunds, Okla., is enjoying an exciting year as the spokeswoman for the American Paint Horse Association. Despite all the glamour that a queen title implies, she takes her job as official Paint promoter very seriously.

It all began at the 1982 APHA National Championship Show in Oklahoma City, Okla., where she was representing the Frontier Paint Horse Club. After a long week of competition and activities, an elated Regina graciously accepted her Miss APHA crown and began an unforgettable year.

An experienced equestrienne, Regina wears the Miss APHA crown proudly. She projects an attractive and knowledgeable demeanor as she serves as the APHA's roving ambassador. Regina's years as a Paint Horse veteran qualify her to represent the breed.

A "little ear" on feeder calves has become an important marketing factor in recent years. Some feeders are demanding that their order buyers select calves with some Brahman in their genetic make-up. We think one of the best tools available to put a "little ear" on your feeder calves is to turn out a Beefmaster bull.

Contact the N.B.A. for a list of breeders who have breeding age Beefmaster bulls for sale.

Selling 54 Lots

41 Italian Full Blood Chianina

7 Polled Chianina

6 Black Chianina

Alson Ranch is noted for its superior group of females. The progeny of such dams as LGD Miss Ferrero 2J (the 1978 ACA National grand champion and dam of 14 champions in 1981, 1982 and 1983), ARR Blossom 1F (granddam of some of our champions), Cheryl 2H, and Rico Prima Donna 052 (reserve senior champion full blood at 1982 Pacific Region Show) are being offered.

Featured sires of this prestigious offering include:

VF Connection, Maximizer, Trimline, Mr Italy, Imolo 3000, and Black Ben.

Certified Brucellosis-Free Herd. Certification No. 71-188

Since 1973, ALSON RANCH has been pursuing a family line of percentage Chianina females within our herd to produce polled American purebred Chianina. Through the embryo transfer method we have produced a number of polled 15/16 purebred bulls and females.

This blood line began with a polled half blood female born March 4, 1972, sired by Diaceto. A polled 3/4 Chianina female, sired by Fadino, was born in 1973. The third generation of polled females was a 7/8 daughter of Frigilio born in 1976. On October 7, 1979, the first 15/16 polled female was born. She was sired by Faletto. Imolo 3000 was the sire of our first 15/16 polled bull, born in February of 1980.

Since then we have had polled bulls sired by Blue Sky Jet Set, Ben-Torr, VF Connection, Black Magic and Pure Black.

We have now bred 15/16 polled bulls to 15/16 polled females, producing 15/16 Chianina with the polled gene on both sides of their pedigrees. There are a number of these polled bulls and heifers on the ground.

When breeding a 15/16 polled to another 15/16 polled, about 75 percent of the offspring have been polled.

Alson Ranch is offering this group of polled bulls and heifers so that you can cross your polled stock with them to further intensify the polled gene in your herd.

Ankole Watutsi Registry Formed

The Ankole Watutsi International Registry was formed on January 20, 1983 at an organizational meeting held at the Livestock Exchange Building in Denver during the National Western Stock Show.

The specific purposes for forming this registry are to recognize these cattle as a distinct breed in order to protect their ancient, rare and unique heritage, originated in Africa and to preserve their purity and promote public awareness of the breed, according to the newly elected President, Dean Drake of Penrose, Colorado.

"There are approximately 120 purebred Ankole or Watutsi cattle in the United States. We formed the association to record their bloodlines and start a crossbreeding, upbreeding program which will advance these cattle through a number of generations to purebreds as has been done in several other breeds of cattle," said Drake.

Maureen Neidhardt, Hebron, N.D., was elected Secretary/Treasurer and Newsletter Editor, and the Board of Directors as follows: George Ansley, Haswell, CO; Bill Lowe, Canon City, CO; Marlin Neidhardt, Hebron, N.D.; Don Shadow, Winchester, TN and Don Zavislan, Pueblo West, CO.
